STATE CHAMP TILT HERE

Perry's And Pallotta Oil Co. Will Battle For Softball Crown Sunday

Rockland will be the softball center of Maine Sunday afternoon as the powerful Pelotta Oil Company team of Portland and the Perry's Markets aggregation of Rockland battle it out in the best of three games.

Softball President Nathan Witham of Rockland announced at press time this morning that High Commissioner Dr. Cyrus K. Briggs of Portland had delivered an ultimatum to the officials of the Pelotta Oil Co. this morning that they play at Rockland Sunday, as originally planned or forfeit the game and the State championship.

The Pelottas announced in a Portland paper this morning that they would not play here despite previous plans. Briggs has ordered them to play. Should they not come to Rockland, Perry's Markets will be declared State champions and will go to the New England playoffs in Connecticut, Witham said.

Witham stated that should the Pelottas not come, there will be other games to fill the afternoon. However, he is confident that they will appear as scheduled on orders of Dr. Briggs and play the scheduled three games.

Two out of three games for the State championship.

With the Federal Government in offering a hot lunch to the pupils of the town's East Side School. This building houses the village elementary and grammar grades together with the High School. It is expected that one hot meal a day will be served to about 80 students.

This lunch program was originally supported by the Simon's Corner Community Association and the Grange. It was finally made permanent by the appropriation of funds at the March town meeting. A room on the ground floor of the school building has been equipped with a refrigerator, an electric range, a sink, cupboards and shelves. Dishes, cutlery and utensils are still to be bought.

In order to conserve its limited funds the committee will welcome gifts of equipment or supplies suitable for use in the school kitchen. Persons desiring to contribute such items may leave them at the Fire Hall in Rockport village at any time between now and Sept. 15.

Waldoboro 14, Thomaston 5

Why the Waldoboro team has won the championship of the Twilight League was again demonstrated on the home grounds Tuesday night when that team walked over the invading Thomaston outfit by the lopsided score of 14 to 5.

All the fun Thomaston had was in the fifth inning when the visitors scored all of their five runs, four of them being due to a grand slam by Robinson. Aside from this inning Bowman was untouchable.

Ray Wink homered with one aboard and Bagley made a triple. Thomaston 0 0 0 0 5 0 0—5 5 5. Waldoboro 4 0 0 3 1 0 x—14 11 2.

Upham, Dana, and Pierpont; Bowman and Sprague.

Rockland 6, Waldoboro 2

The Pirates evened up the season's series with Waldoboro at two each, Wednesday night by winning 6-2 in seven innings.

Freddie LaCrosse chalked up win number nine, his second over Waldoboro, scattering five hits and walking one.

The second inning scoring proved to be the deciding factor. The Pirates scored three runs when LaCrosse and Keisley singled and Tommy Anderson tripled to left center.

Waldoboro had talked once on Burnheimer's single, a sacrifice and an error.

Hodgkins tripled to right with one on to make the score 4-1 in the third.

The Pirates loaded the sacks again in the fourth on Miller's single, a walk and an error. Chisholm grounded to first allowing Miller to score the fifth tally.

In the fifth the Pirates got a free run as Nevins bobbled LaCrosse's hit in front of the mound and threw wild to first. A wild pitch put LaCrosse on third and brought in L. Wink as relief hurler.

He uncocked a wild pitch also to allow LaCrosse to score. Through the Pirates loaded the bases for the fourth time in the game in the fifth they were unable to score another run.

Waldoboro's final tally came in the sixth on Sprague's triple and an outfield error.

ALL GOES WELL AT THE FAIR

Races, Pulling Matches, Fireworks and Everything That Pleases

Union Fair goes today, into its fourth day of the race meeting and the third of the agricultural fair. The handle at the mutuels ran up the first two days into near record figures as bettors on the 300 horses entered backed their judgment with their coin. Yesterday, betting was off a little with no explanation other than just, perhaps, people were playing it a little closer to their vests for the day. On the other hand, the hottest day of the year may have been somewhat of a governing factor on attendance and betting.

Horses are quartered at Union, Windsor and as far away as Lewiston to accommodate the unusual number entered.

Horse pulling is the highlight of the fair outside the track activities. The new grandstand attracts the crowd and the stepped up program furnishes plenty of activity in the pulling ring.

The midway and agricultural exhibits are drawing large crowds; competing easily with the track for attractions. The livestock sections and judging are drawing much attention as prize cattle and oxen from all parts of the State are shown.

The fair continues today and tonight with fireworks in the evening and the topnotch vaudeville show (Continued on Page Eight)

"Pard" Kenyon Delights His Brother Members With Story of European Tour

When the members of the Rockland Lions Club learn that Rev. E. O. Kenyon has been having a vacation trip, they know that a pleasant meeting is forthcoming when he tells his brethren about it. And such was certainly the case Wednesday when he related for their benefit some of the high lights of his Summer tour in Europe.

Father Kenyon in his interesting and naive style talked for 40 minutes finding his recompense in the keen attention which was paid to him, and the waves of laughter with which the story was interspersed.

Amusing incidents marked the crossing, climaxed by his thrill when he caught sight of Lands End and the English Channel, past Dunkirk and on to Rotterdam.

The speaker meantime described in tensely interesting manner the blitz through which the people of England passed during the crucial months. Ludgate Hill, Westminster, Bristol, Liverpool, and Coventry, with their shelters "knocked about a bit." The calm philosophy with which the Englishmen endured these perilous moments was a revelation to Mr. Kenyon's audience.

The speaker told how he was impressed with a new sense of time. He was living for the moment, not in the 16th century, but in the 11th, 12th and 13th, even back to 597 and the Roman occupation.

Fr. Kenyon's description of the varied types of people he met in England—the Limes and the aristocrats—was in itself a classic. The families, the children and the schools, all came in for earnest and revealing attention.

The fireplace in the homes—"and I couldn't keep warm, even in June," said the speaker. "The passion which the British people have for tea drinking was described at length to wondering witnesses.

Facing a large map of England, the speaker described mile by mile, his extensive travels in that country and the special points of interest which he visited.

No one can understand England without some grasp of the Church of England, he said. Freedom of Religion, but the church predominates over all life, whether at Oxford or in the village. Here tradition is hallowed. It is part of the warp and woof of the whole of England.

"England" said the speaker, "is the most civilized nation in the world. I would like to bring it all back with me."

One of the staunchest Rockport fans is Tom Farley of Glen Cove. I find him right on the job every season, always exhorting the home team to do its darndest.

Mrs. Robert Waterman of South Thomaston is responsible for this one.

"The younger women and wives of Spruce Head have started organizing a women's baseball team for the 1949 season. They would appreciate competition from surrounding communities in starting a Women's League similar to that of the Twilight League, managers of the competing teams reply through The Courier-Gazette.

The fans don't want to see the season close too soon, and they appreciate Manager Wincepaw's efforts to obtain further attractions.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET

MRS. SMITH ENDORSED

At a labor vote conference in Chicago Wednesday night President William Green of the A. F. REMEMBERED THE "KIDS"

In a will made just one week before his death Babe Ruth left a generous bequest to be used for the interests of the kids of America. Throughout his busy and spectacular career his welfare had been his paramount thought. They idolized him and his love for them was one of the big things of his life.

THE BATTLE OF BALLOTS

The South again becomes a battleground during the next few weeks, but this time the scrapping will be of an oral instead of a military character. The scene of action will be seven States which have 53 votes in the Electoral College and the outcome there might be decidedly significant in the event the race between the Republicans and Democrats should prove close.

An effort to capture Kentucky which provides the Democratic vice presidential nominee in Senator Alben Barkley, apparently runs second only to the assault on Missouri Democrats in the grand strategy of the Republican high command. Besides Missouri and Kentucky, the Republicans intend to center a lot of their campaign efforts on Maryland, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Tennessee and West Virginia.

COLBY'S BIG DRIVE

Colby College is about to make a sweeping campaign to raise $1,750,000 for Mayflower Hill development. The organization will have as its nucleus more than 500 Colby alumni and friends of the College, directing the fund's campaign in 17 regional areas throughout the United States and its possessions. The development fund will enable the college to erect the new dormitory and classroom buildings necessary to house and instruct all of Colby's 1,900 students on the new Mayflower Hill campus. The new buildings include two men's dormitories, a women's dormitory, a biology building and fraternity houses, all of which must be obtained before the college can totally abandon its 130-year-old plant hemmed in by railroad yards and a growing Waterville business section.

You won't believe it till you see it, so come in today for a demonstration of the Winkler LP*. See it burn dirty oil, low grade oil, a mixture of oil and water, crankcase drainings, "hard-cracked" oil—without smoke or soot.

The main reason why a Winkler LP* saves oil and money is because it can be sized exactly to your heating requirements. Most burners waste as much as 50% because they are over-sized to prevent nozzle-clogging. The Winkler LP*, however, is sized to burn just enough oil—no heat wasted up the chimney.

Your service troubles are over when you install a Winkler LP*—its simple, dependable design and clog-proof nozzle save costly service work.

Police Chief George I. Shaw has abolished the diagonal parking on Park street and has remarked the street on the North side for conventional parking to the curb. The situation has long been a menace, with large trucks projecting into the street at times more than half its width and offering the possibility of a fatal accident from a passenger car crashing into the overhang of the trucks.

GRACIE'S GARDENS
9 Booker St.
Tel. 114-4 Thomaston

The impression that I got when approaching Gracie's garden, was one of gossamer beauty, giant gladiolas waving in a myriad of colors ranging from the lightest hues to the richest shades with each color serving to complement and enhance the other colors. These giant gladiolas have flowerets measuring from 6 to 8 1/2 in. in diameter and are from 4 to 6 feet tall. At present I have in front of me a beautiful bouquet of these gladiolas, given to me for inspiration. They are inspiring but their ethereal loveliness is difficult to capture on paper. To see them is to want them. I can truthfully say that they are the most beautiful gladiolas I have ever seen and even that is an understatement. Their glorious colors and texture are unexcelled. Some of them are a rich dark red with petals of velvet texture, others of creamy white, sunny yellow, blue and these colors mingled in a floral arrangement are breathtaking. Their iridescent loveliness will add much to your home. Some of these gladiolas have ruffled edges which give them a delicate appearance. In spite of their fragile appearance they do have longlasting qualities. Mrs. Charles A. Swift has adequate facilities for packing and shipping and she has sent them as far as Kentucky where they have arrived with the dew still on the petals. An amazing factor in this story is the exceptionally low selling price of $2 a dozen and the only extra charge for shipping is postage coverage.

Don't miss this chance for beauty in your home. Make your home more beautiful by visiting Gracie's garden in Thomaston.

His Blueness Gone

Gordon Williams Is Back In His South Thomaston Home, Happy

Long weeks of hard work by a group of South Thomaston women and the financial aid of a still larger group throughout the county paid off big Thursday afternoon. All the effort and funds seemed small compared to the lift given those who saw Gordon Williams jump off the train steps into his father's arms, the terrible blueness in his lips and hands, which has crippled him since birth, completely gone.

The little fellow seemed to be completely cured of the crippling illness, and moved about with the energy of a normal boy of 7 who had been away on a long trip and was seeing people he knew for the first time in weeks.

The nearly $3000 raised by people of the area provided the best of surgery and care after the operation to bring the little fellow back home to play and attend school as any boy of his age may do. The lad, today, is an example of what community spirit and human kindness can do for those who need a helping hand at times. To be sure, there was a lot of hard work on the part of many and financial sacrifice by others but in exchange for all that a boy has received a gift of normal life through the years ahead.

A reception followed in The Gray Barn on Demarest avenue, Englewood.

Miss Fairfield, given in marriage by her father, wore marquisette over satin with sweetheart neckline edged with lace which adorned the sleeves as cuffs. Her fingertip veil was held in place with a small callily. She carried white roses with baby's breath.

Miss Barbara Scott Jordan of Tenafly, as maid of honor, wore pink marquisette over taffeta with bishop sleeves and sweetheart neckline; also a large net bonnet of matching net and carried an old-fashioned colonial bouquet.

The junior bridesmaid, Miss Jacqueline Jones of Englewood, a cousin of the bridegroom, and Miss Mary Ann Healy of Fort Lee, a bridesmaid, were colorful in light blue and pale yellow over taffeta, with scalloped-edged shoulder capes. Their small bouquets matched their costumes and they carried Colonial bouquets.

State Swim Meet Championship Honors Will Be Awarded At Samo- set Sunday

The Maine State championship swimming meet, to be held at the Samoset Sunday at 3 p. m., promises to be less well attended than some which have taken place in more favorable locations, such as Portland, but entries have been coming in from various parts of the State, and approximately 40 entrants are expected.

George Erswell, who won the State championship in the 400-meter freestyle two weeks ago at Sebasco, will compete in the 200-meter freestyle. Erswell is also the holder of the 1500-meter State championship. He is a member of the Bowdoin College swimming team, which is rated among the top ten teams in the country.

It is hoped that Leonard Gath, co-captain of the Bowdoin swimming team, will compete in the diving with his usual thrilling exhibition. Gath was 2d in the New England AAU championships a few years ago, and took third place in the New England Interscholastic championships last year.

Star of the meet will probably be Tony Soltysak, who was the National Boys' Club champion two years in a row, 1940 and 1941. The other co-captain of the Bowdoin team, present State titleholder in the 200-meter breast stroke. Two boys from the Portland Boys' Club who are expected to compete are Gil Wishart and Dick Lucas. Wishart is the National 50-yard freestyle schoolboy champion, and last Spring defeated famed Jimmy McLane of Exeter in the 10-yard freestyle in the stunning time of John Frank Hemmel of Englewood served as best man. Ushers were William Fairfield, brother of the bride, and Peter Neukus, a cousin of the bridegroom.

After a trip through New England, the couple will live in Englewood.

The former Miss Fairfield was graduated from Dwight Morrow High School and attended the Advertising Art School in Fort Lee. She is with Consolidated Film Industries in Fort Lee.

Mr. Wyman, also a Dwight Morrow alumnus, attended Bergen Junior College and for three years served in the Navy. He is with the New York Bell Telephone Laboratories—The Englewood N. J. Press. Local interest attaches to the above wedding report, due to the fact that the bride is a granddaughter of the late Freeman W. Smith, formerly of Rockland; and a cousin of Alton Hall Blackington.

The meet is at 3 p. m. Sunday at the Samoset pool, and admission is free to spectators. It is hoped that there will be enough local interest to justify State championship meets here in future years.

Definite entrants from the Rockland area are Justin Cross, Dea Perry, John Bird and Paul Moran. Possible entrants are Robert Annis and Ronald Thurston.

Death Was Sudden

Charles W. Allen, 69, retired lighthouse keeper who served the Lighthouse Service and Coast Guard for nearly 40 years, was found dead on the steps of his home on Broadway about 4.30 p. m. A Boatswain's Mate, first class, he had served as keeper at Marshall's Point, Doubting Point, Boon Island, Avery's Rock, and Eagle Island to total of almost 40 years.

Of course first on the program was a bountiful dinner served at tables set up on the lawn. Mrs. Alice True and Mrs. Alma True took over for the hostess and attended to the general dinner and arrangements. Mrs. Everett Libby showed movies for the children in the barn at the True home.

August, and an invitation was extended by Miss Frances Hahn of Malden and Thomaston to meet at her home, the beautiful old Simon Shibles homestead in Thomaston.

All joined lustily in singing the old songs, then the younger generation came in for an applause. Master Charles Crockett, aged 8, played two piano solos; a duet was sung by Beverly Clough and Janet Meserve; and a solo, by Janet, all seven-year-olds. Roger Hunt who celebrated his fifth anniversary that day sang "Four Leaf Clover." Two solos were sung by Mrs. Martha Shibles Stiles of Mr. Vernon, N. Y., whose rich soprano voice was much enjoyed and who with her mother, Mrs. Edgar Shibles, motors up each year especially for the occasion.

The remainder of the day was devoted to further plans for next year. Each branch of the family bring any information or incidents of interest to Lester Shibles who has a very authentic genealogy dating back to 1732 when the first John S. and his wife landed at Pemaquid.

The day was finished off by posing for the camera.
It was a most enjoyable affair from start to finish and the departing words were "Now remember not to make any other engagement on the third Wednesday in August next year."

The Rotary Club

Hears A Dramatic Story Of Late War As It Was Seen By France

The dramatic story of the people of France during the last war was revealed by Denise Guehard at last week's meeting of Rotary at the Thordike Hotel.

President "Jerry" Burrows presided; Harold Jameson and "Staff" Congdon did their usual good job conducting the songs. The "smile for the day" told by President "Jerry" seemed like old times as it has been missing since Dr. Lowe has been on vacation.

Albert MacPhail, in charge of program, introduced the speaker, Jessie Guehard, attended by her mother, Countess Paul Guehard, both having spent the entire war period in France.

The speaker told about the early period of the war when all the able-bodied men of France were called up for defense along the Belgium border. The people of France at that time were on the optimistic side, thinking their defense could not be broken. Miss Guehard mentions that in 1939, while she and her mother were at their winter resort, there were no leave were of high spirits and no immediate danger seemed imminent.

Very soon however the attack by the Germans did take place and the civilians started evacuating to the south. The attack was so stupendous that the Germans simply poured into France and their petrels were established.

Upon her father's advice, Miss Guehard and her mother went to a place in the country about 200 miles south of Paris. While en route to this new haven much time was consumed because of congested roads, due to the many people and cars on the roads. Everyone and everything was loaded to capacity, carrying all the belongings that could be taken on the journey south.

The real migration to the south came when the French people heard that Paris had been taken by the Germans. Miss Guehard said that on the night before they planned to start for the Spanish border it was a beautiful evening, but this evening was broken by the falling of bombs from planes that came over in great masses.

In making the trip to the Spanish border the main highways were so congested that by-roads and detours had to be taken in order to make any time at all. It was necessary now to have all identification papers as there were motorized units all along the highways asking the identity of each person.

It was during this migration that many people were machine-gunned from enemy planes. One of the heroic stands against the invading Germans was made by a crack Cavalry School of France. This school fought, although greatly outnumbered by the enemy, until every student was killed.

Upon reaching their destination in the Pyrenees near the Spanish border, Miss Guehard found that the Germans were asking for and taking things by order of requisition. One day a German came and said he wanted their car, asked for a requisition, signed by the Mayor, he could not produce one. Later, after some talk, the German took out a gun and said that was his requisition—he got the car.

A great wave of relief swept over the people of France when the United States entered the war. They knew it would take time but eventually felt that the Germans would be defeated.

The Germans were now beginning to force the French to go to work in Germany. Forced Labor and Draft were the methods used.

Because of food shortage, group organization began among the French people. In this way they could plunder to the best advantage.

With the Allies in Africa and Italy steadily advancing, the French people gave their help by smuggling back flyers who were shot down. An estimated figure of 3000 men were returned for action in this way, costly to the lives of the French people but a great aid to the Allies in winning the war.

Finally the big day arrived. V.E. Day meant happiness to the French people that they had not known for a long time.

Miss Guehard said that the hatred and disagreeable things vested on the Germans by the French people during the invasion was not to be taken as covering the whole, but only on those that were its occupants.

A New President

Camden Historical Society Opens Its New Year Auspiciously

David A. Nichols of Lincolnville Beach was elected as president of the Camden Historical Society at the annual meeting of that organization held at the St. Thomas Parish House Wednesday night. Mr. Nichols, who is a World War II veteran and a graduate student of law at the University of Michigan, has been interested for many years in the history of this area. Others elected were: Vice President, Rev. Melvin H. Dorr, Jr.; secretary, Mrs. Evelyn Tewksbury; treasurer, Miss Helen Dougherty; custodian, John Tewksbury; and Eric Sexton was elected as a trustee for five years.

The annual report of the Custodian, John Tewksbury, showed an interesting growth in the Society since its first formal meeting in 1939, it having been formed actually in 1935. In the year 1939, the treasurer's report stated that the balance was ten cents. Helen Dougherty, treasurer for 1947-48, reported a balance of $115.56. There are now 136 members in the Society and the number of its possessions have increased to such an extent that the time is come to consider having them catalogued and of hiring an attendant to exhibit them. During the past year there have been 26 separate donations to the Society, including a West Camden Gold Mine Certificate, glimpses of Camden in 1900 and a picture of the 1918 Armistice celebration.

Following the meeting, James M. Brown, III, Director of the new Farnsworth Museum in Rockland, was introduced as the speaker by John Webber, retiring president of the Society. Mr. Brown, in his speech on the "Historical Aspects of the Farnsworth Collection and Activities," related some interesting facts about the Farnsworth home. The house was built in 1850 he said, and all furnishings, even the books, date from the period between 1850 and 1875. The museum-library is designed to work with the house and is built in the same Greek Revival style. The library contains a fireplace taken from the original Capitol building at Washington, D. C. In outlining the plans for the Farnsworth Museum, Mr. Brown said that they hoped to have a photographic exhibition of the architecture of the Penobscot Bay region this year and later, exhibitions of wallpaper art and silverware.

Following Mr. Brown's talk, refreshments provided through the courtesy of a member of the Society, were served, with Mrs. Adin Hopkins, Mrs. Marjorie Stone and Miss Olive Coates as hostesses.

GEORGE LUKS

George Lukes was a member of a group of newspaper illustrators who got their training from depicting scenes of everyday life. Before the day of modern methods of photo-engraving, the pictorial reporter was a feature of the daily press.

Lukes studied at the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts and in Paris and Dusseldorf. He was a political caricaturist and a newspaper illustrator during the war with Spain. His painting has force and a rich tonality and his pictures of children are excellent and spirited. He also painted portraits in the same spontaneous and faintly caricaturist manner.

Mrs. Frederic A. Ward, a pretty young Maine housewife, Thordike, Me., was awarded a new 1949 Ford sedan at her farm Tuesday noon by International Milling Company the famous millers of Robin Hood Flour. Mrs. Ward won the new car by coining a name for the Robin Hood Mystery Rolls in the recent national contest.

The award of the new completely equipped blue four door Ford was made to Mrs. Ward by special award committee. Present at the ceremony were Grocer E. Sam Farwell, winner of $100 for helping Mrs. Ward with entry. First Selectman of Thordike Norman Ward who presented the keys of the car to the young housewife. Roger Stewart, Salesmanager of the Ford Belfast Auto Sales Company, and Carl L. Polini State of Maine Manager for Robin Hood Flour.

Mrs. Ward was almost speechless when the award committee arrived with her prize. She could only remark, "I just can't believe it, it's beautiful, is it really mine?" After the ceremony, Mrs. Ward was driven to the State Capital for another thrill. On the lawn of Blaine House she received the personal congratulations of Governor Horace Hildreth.

The attractive mother of one boy is one of the first major prize winners of a national contest to be chosen from the State of Maine. The national contest which closed on June 15 required the contestants to think up a name for the Robin Hood Mystery rolls. After she had baked the rolls with Robin Hood Flour Mrs. Ward's family helped her think up the name which won her National recognition and a shiny new Ford.

A Joint Meeting

A joint meeting and clambake outing of the District Supervisors from the Knox-Lincoln and Waldo County Soil Conservation Districts was held last Sunday near Waldoboro. The Knox and Lincoln Soil Conservation District was represented by Ray Thurston, Union, Chairman of the Board of Supervisors, Donald Johnston, Jefferson, Secretary, Schuyler Hawes, Union and Roy Gross, Soil Conservationist, Waldoboro.

The business meeting, which was conducted by Chairman Thurston, included a discussion on the need for and possible purchase of a bag harrow that would be made available and rented to farmers co-operating in the District's program of proper land use. It was voted to purchase such a piece of equipment by the District for use in Knox and Lincoln Counties providing satisfactory arrangements could be made. It was requested that farmers be notified of his additional piece of equipment that the District proposes to purchase, and farmers desiring to use the bag harrow should contact one of the District Supervisors or Roy Gross of the Soil Conservation Service, Waldoboro.

Mr. Thurston announced that the annual Summer meeting of the State Association of District Supervisors, will be held at Dover-Foxcroft, Sept. 2. It was also announced that the District Supervisors, including Ray Thurston, Donald Johnston, Schuyler Hawes, Roy Brown of Nobleboro and Henry Kontio of West Rockport are planning to attend.

JOHN WHORF

John Whorf, one of America's most popular water colorists is a realist whose atmospheric veracity concerning the changing moods of weather and the authentic freedom with which he handles snow and rain place these paintings in an important place in any exhibition. Whorf's versatility is proven by the varied subjects used in his exhibitions from year to year. Marines and street scenes as well as the sportsman world of fishing and canoes on mountain streams, figures blending with woodland scenes and always the familiar Provincetown atmosphere.

RECALLING DAYS OF YORE

Former Camden Man Preserves Interesting History Of the Penobscot Valley

(By Frank H. Miller)
CHAPTER TWO

In the earliest days of Camden there were many bears on Mount Battie, and that section was a great hunting ground for both moose and bear. The old residents used to enjoy telling the Summer people how Metcalf rode down the mountain on the bear's back. That you may have the story in full, I have taken it from Lock's "Sketches of Camden," an old history now out of print.

"Leonard Metcalf and a Mr. Webster, in company with James Richards, went out one day on a bear hunt. The only gun in the company was carried by Richards, while the other two went armed with a hatchet each. As the company divided, Richards kept at the base of Mr. Battie while the others ascended it and kept the same course—towards Canaan (Lincolnville).

"Mr. Richards' two dogs had scared up an old bear on the western slope of the mountain, and after shooting it, he went in search of his companions to apprise them of his success. Meantime, Metcalf and Webster had found the bear where the two cubs of considerable size were secreted. They tried to ferret them out of the den by building a fire and smoking the entrance. As one of the cubs came out Metcalf made a dash at him with his jack-knife and then seized it by the ears and yelled to Webster to come and knock it in the head with the hatchet, but through fear he dared not approach to render assistance.

"Cursing Webster for his cowardice, Metcalf jumped beside the animal which dashed with fright down the mountain, trying to throw off its rider. Firmly grasping the bear's neck with one hand, Metcalf tried to cut its throat with his knife, but the blade kept shutting up, so his attempts to dispatch him were in vain.

"After thus riding down nearly to the base of the mountain, tearing his clothes and scratching his legs badly by the bushes and crust of the snow, he was met by Richards who quickly approached and knocked the bear in the head with his hatchet, and thus relieved Metcalf from his critical situation. Metcalf and the bear went down on the back slope of the mountain and came out near the Timothy Fay place."

James Richards was probably the greatest hunter in any of the coast towns. He is said to have killed at least 30 bears and 70 moose around Mount Battie. At another time, in the early days, Mrs. Richards heard an awful commotion on the side of the mountain, in the late afternoon, and upon looking out the door she saw three bears in mortal combat. When her husband returned she told him what she had seen, whereupon he took his dog and started for the scene. As he went along the westerly side (the side on which is now Mountain street) he spied traces of blood, and on approaching a ledge he saw where a ranger bear had killed the other two and partly devoured one of them. Mr. Richards hid behind a tree until bruin came in sight when he fired and hit the bear in a vital spot. The bear was of immense size, and it was said one of his paws would fill a peck measure.

During the War of 1812 four canons were taken up to the summit of Mount Battie by oxen and it is quite probable they used the path that the bear took when he brought Metcalf down on his back. There is no doubt that this same route was used in later years when the road was built up to the hotel.

It is interesting to read how the coast towns were protected from the British in both wars. To be sure, we had companies recruited from the back towns, but they were not trained, and when they were wanted in an emergency, it was hard to find them. Towards the latter part of the War of 1812, a man came to Camden from one of the islands to transact some business. On his way in he was overhauled by the commander of a British frigate who was intending to take and destroy the town. He was told by the Britisher to look around while he was ashore and get the location of the troops and how many there were in the town.

The incident was duly reported to the town authorities who made immediate preparations to receive them. The man, on his way home, told the Commander that the town was full of soldiers and at the discharge of the cannon on the mountain it would bring in men by the hundreds from the back towns.

The British frigate sailed away without attacking the town. The amusing part of the incident was how well the town was protected by the men left on the mountain with the guns. Fearing an attack, two men went up the mountain to see if everything was ready. They found but one man there and he was asleep. The rest had gone to Canaan (Lincolnville) to a husking party.

When the writer was young, he was told, along with other boys, that there was a big cave on the top of Mount Battie where the bears used to den up in the winter. During the Summer, day after day, three or four boys took lunches and went on a hunt for the cave.

On the way up the first time they would sit down occasionally and talk over how deep the cave was going to be, and whether they should have brought a lantern.

They could not decide who would be the first one to get into the cave, but it was settled by agreeing to draw lots when they found it. As it is remembered, none looked forward to being the first one to go into what was pictured to be a dark hole. However, none was chosen, for in a few minutes two big boys came down the mountain and told they had seen some bears up there. Everyone went straight home and told their parents who just laughed at it. Anyway, all started again and hunted over every foot of the summit, but never a cave was found.

A few years after the Revolution there appeared at the Bay settlements a hunter by the name of Michael Davis. Both Locke and Eaton, in their histories, give accounts of this interesting man who was called the "Leatherstocking" of the wilderness. Ben Ames Williams, in his "Come Spring," speaks of Davis having called periodically at the settlements in Union. He says that the only name Davis wanted to be known by was "Tom Davis."

He began to appear in the forest settlements of Penobscot Bay about 1781, and on each trip planned to visit every place where he could find people to talk with him. He was a very eccentric character, and was always accompanied by his dog. He wandered from the Kennebec to the Penobscot to exchange furs for ammunition and the necessities of life. He was clad in hunting clothes, with leather leggings tucked inside of his moose-skin moccasins.

His unique appearance with his long, white beard attracted attention and excited the curiosity of everyone he met. He was particularly apt at relating stories of his adventures and the children were always pleased when he appeared in the settlements.

He was very queer in some of his actions, one of them being that of bowing with great reverence at the sight of bread, but whether this act proceeded from religious or other motives, could not be determined.

He was eccentric beyond doubt, or he would never have led such a life in the wilderness, and many were the speculations concerning the reason. The story given the most prominence was that he lost his property at card playing. He either gave the hint, or the story was told by someone who knew him. It was that he had had a big farm and considerable property at one time, but not being able to keep away from cards and drink, he gradually lost both farm and money.

It was then that he became disgusted with life and determined to spend the rest of it in the wilderness.

One of the stories that he enjoyed telling was that he was confined to his camp for several weeks, by sickness, and came near starving. During his sickness his traps were found by a hunting party from Warren. Supposing them to be abandoned, they took them away.

On his recovery, he tracked the people and found his traps. One day while in the vicinity of Thomaston, he saw a moose entrapped by a line. On firing at him, the bullet cut the line and the moose ran away. He told this story in Belfast where it was not too well believed. They joked him so much about it that he finally told them that Belfast people should be roped up as the moose was.

His long residence in the present town of Montville, gave that place, before it was incorporated, the name of Davisstown. After many years spent as a hunter, his range gradually became more limited until he was obliged to give up his travels. He ended his life at the home of his daughter who was married to a man named Partridge. It is thought that he lived on one of the Penobscot Bay Islands.

Before we leave Camden's Mount Battie, there is one more subject that no doubt will remind you of your own young days. It was in the Spring of the year when everybody had visions of flapjacks and maple syrup, that two boys began tapping maple trees around the base of the mountain.

It was their second year. The first year was such a success, especially on the part of the mothers who boiled down the sap, that all thought it was worth trying again. The second year was not so successful until the trouble was found.

About the second week of the after-school rounds of the trees it was discovered that someone was making the rounds ahead. The following week, by missing an afternoon of school it was found out where the sap was going.

The Summer before the boys had helped one of the older boys build a camp which was situated about in the center of operations. That was where the sap was going.

It was immediately decided to make a bomb and blow out one end of the camp. One boy got one of those old-time green beer bottles, took it up to Mr. Bisbee's and got some powder. Another found some bagging, rope and a piece of fuse. A bomb was made and placed in the camp, intending to blow out one end. Anyway, the boys lighted the fuse and ran, it seems faster than they ever ran before. They hadn't gone very far when flames were heard.

All were too scared to go back to see the result of the work. However, the camp was burned to the ground and no one was suspected. One thing that was in the boys' favor was the fact that there was some snow on the ground in the woods which prevented the fire from spreading. The sap was never touched after that.

Competing Measures

Read This Carefully Before You Vote In State Election

For the first time in Maine law-making history, voters will cast ballots on competing measures, Sept. 13.

The Tabb and Barlow Bills, both concerning labor unions, will be on a referendum ballot following a co-ordinated decision that ruled them competing measures.

Voters may vote "No" to both measures or "Yes" to either. A "yes" vote for both bills will void that particular ballot.

The State Election Division said a majority—more than half the number of votes cast—will be required for either bill's adoption.

A one-third or more vote for either or both measures—but still not a majority—would place the bill with the most votes on the 1950 ballot.

The Barlow Bill, initiated for referendum, proposes outlawing closed and union shops, secondary boycotts, sympathetic and jurisdictional strikes.

The Tabb Bill, passed by the last Legislature, bars the closed shop.

Mrs. A. J. Harrison, "Larchwood," Rev. J. Clarke Collind of Belfast, a former pastor, was guest speaker at St. Paul's Chapel on Sunday night, and gave a most interesting sermon. Special music was rendered by the soloist, Mrs. Marion MacRae.

Announces Changes

Sgt. Todd Of Local Recruiting Station Tells Of Army Plans

M-Sgt. John A. Todd, Jr., of the local Recruiting Station, has announced many changes in the processing of applicants for enlistment in the Regular Army.

With the advent of the draft, a hurried call for volunteers to act as instructors for inductees has not proved suitable. To insure that maximum personnel utilization is made of volunteers, the policy of allowing enlistees without prior service to pick their Arm or Branch of Service, upon enlisting (Engineers, Signal Corps, etc.) has been discontinued indefinitely. Upon enlisting the Regular Army soldier has his choice of Airborne, Unassigned, Regular Army Unassigned, one of the overseas commands, or enlistment for Technical School training—if a high school graduate.

In the past, Basic Training—consisting of 13 weeks Orientation and Indoctrination—has been given at Fort Dix, N. J., home of the 9th Infantry Division. Effective Aug. 20, all enlistees without prior service will receive eight weeks of Basic Training at Camp Breckinridge, Kentucky, with the 101st Airborne Division, a veteran of 48 combat assaults, including the heroic defense of Bastogne, during the Battle of the Bulge.

M-Sgt. Todd hastens to assure all prospective enlistees that this measure of restricting the choice of enlistees is not a restrictive one in itself, but it assures the enlistee of an assignment in a position where his services can best be utilized, therefore making him more eligible for promotion and enhancing the possibility of his learning a trade or skill for which he is best qualified.

The changes outlined above would not affect the choice of Branch or Arm, initial assignment and processing for veterans, who would, as in the past, receive their refresher training at Fort Dix before receiving their assignment.

Liked Art Museum

But A. Jay See Comes Back To His Heart Interest, A Band

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

In company with a host of other visitors, I rambled through the Farnsworth Memorial Building last Sunday and it was certainly a pleasure such as is not often enjoyed. The last time I was in this building was in October, 1947, at which time I also had the pleasure of working with three of the slate roofers employed by Hahnel Brothers of Lewiston and it was indeed a pleasant crowd to work with.

Then everything inside the building from basement to ridge pole was dust, dirt and rubble, but an extremely busy place throughout. Then, the scene to me gave no promise of what could be expected in August of this year.

About all that looked natural inside was skylight and windows through which we roofers climbed to gain our stagings.

As I walked from room to room in the Art Gallery, I met friends from all over Knox County, at least. I also had great pleasure in meeting Mr. Brown, the director of the museum and had several short talks with him and believe he will certainly prove his ability more and more as time goes on.

I am no judge of art, but will give a short definition of it as follows:

Positive—Art. Comparative—Arthur. Superlative—Arthritis.

I noticed one room, at least, that would be in my opinion, a splendid room for rehearsals of the Rockland City Band.

Although I am getting plenty old enough (73) to stop trying to be a bandsman, I enjoy playing (not marching) as well as I did 55 years ago, and hope to see the day when Rockland will have a band supported in part, at least, by either the city or some large business body or corporation able to give Rockland a band that people would enjoy hearing.

Uniforms cost money and changes of music should be made often. Knox County has much musical talent and a proper interest shown by those fully able to assist would give this talent incentive to put on weekly concerts at some central point in the city. I hope to see a beginning on these lines, at least.
